

[Inside this issue] APRIL/MAY_05

FEATURE >>> LEGAL >>> DILEMMA >>> NEWS >>> RESEARCH >>> BRIEFING >>> DIARY

- 03 LEADER
OH and disability Should more be done to address perceptions and misconceptions about the health and safety of disabled workers?
- 04 NEWS
 ... bigger fines, fewer inspections – Hampton report has implications for HSE ... carrots for compliance ... safety whistleblowers face the sack, says TUC ... chemical hazards within REACH ... free H&S help for SMEs ... DWP to reform incapacity benefits ... employees fear job loss if they become disabled ... NHS to add 5% to EL insurance ... and then there were five – few directors have been convicted of manslaughter ... work spells the death of family life ... Industrial Injuries Advisories Council annual report ... alcohol testing for police officers ... DWP medical director – new appointment ... US health insurer stops hiring smokers ... Scotland's anti-smoking regulations ... consultants' directory
- 11 LEGAL NEWS
 ... jailed for assault on HSE inspector ... six-figure fine for sugar-plant death ... directors' health and safety bill falls ... employers must prove they had not discriminated in disability cases
- 13 FEATURE
Working with cancer
 People with cancer will gain extra protection from discrimination at work when the Disability Discrimination Bill becomes law. Becky Allen looks at cancer as a workplace issue and asks why, when survival rates for most cancers are increasing, for many the onset of cancer still means the end of work.
- 18 FEATURE
Ageing at work
 Simon Pickvance discusses the occupational health implications of age and work, and argues that effective and flexible management can improve the chances of older workers successfully remaining in, or returning to work.
- 22 FEATURE
Risk assessing for stress
 A small-scale survey of occupational physicians suggests that comparatively few employers are carrying out stress risk assessments. Jacques Tamin discusses the findings.
- 25 FEATURE
Delivering OH services
 Helen Clinkard and James Heffer believe that OH services can be delivered by local GP-based services.
- 28 DILEMMA
Corporate killing
 The government has finally published a draft bill to introduce a new offence of corporate manslaughter. But will it have the desired effect of making employers more accountable for health and safety? Lawrence Waterman and John Rimington argue for, and against, a change in the law.
- 30 EXPERT WITNESS
Stress and the law at work
 Despite the Court of Appeal issuing detailed guidance on stress-at-work cases, judges are still finding difficulty in interpreting the law in this complex area. Six appeal cases have led the Court of Appeal to clarify the law. Diana Kloss explains.
- 32 RESEARCH DIGEST
 ... protecting healthcare staff from SARS ... 'bird flu' ... asbestos deaths ... impact of obesity ... pollution particles thicken blood ... job-stress ... history of occupational medicine ... passive smoking ... school workers' exposure to Hep B virus
- 36 BOOKSHELF, LETTERS & DIARY
 ... safety toolkit ... occupational health law ... key events in occupational health
- 37 TOOLBOX
 ... roundup of regulatory changes and guidance
- 38 CLASSIFIED
 ... job vacancies