

[Inside this issue] JUNE/JULY_06

FEATURES >>> LEGAL >>> DILEMMA >>> NEWS >>> RESEARCH >>> BRIEFING >>> DIARY

- 03 LEADER
Rehab going forward Has 'rehabilitation' become the new management buzzword – with no commitment to match the rhetoric?
- 04 NEWS
 ... one-third of workers take no time off ... exercise cuts absence ... HSE loses tracks ... needlestick law for Europe? ... age matters ... consultation on worker involvement ... managers turning to bullying ... sleepless nights ... TUC wants speedier personal injury system ... stress takes its toll on unproductive managers ... hidden costs of chronic fatigue ... BOHS president announced
- 10 LEGAL NEWS
 ... GMC supports doctor in employee-consent case – fitness to practise ruling in Slater case ... Lords restrict employers' asbestos liability – Barker v Corus (UK) plc ... baggage firm loses its appeal – Menzies Aviation (UK) Ltd v Health and Safety Executive
- 12 FEATURE
Get charter
 The government has launched a Charter for Health, Work and Wellbeing and appointed a national director for health and work. John Ballard reports.
- 14 FEATURE
Friend or foe?
 Nicola Godwin investigates the role of the OH technician – a new breed of professional employed to provide OH support and basic health surveillance in the workplace. Are they a cheap alternative to qualified OH practitioners, or a valuable addition to the OH team?
- 19 FEATURE
Job Retention and Rehabilitation Pilot
 Results of the government-funded research have been released, but fail to demonstrate any improvement in return-to-work rates through health and/or workplace interventions compared with doing nothing. John Ballard reviews the findings.
- 23 FEATURE
Too little, too late
 What went wrong with the Job Retention and Rehabilitation Pilot? Simon Pickvance considers what can be learned from the two-year study.
- 26 FEATURE
Individual stress management
 Occupational physician Anne Price believes that the HSE's stress management standards, while designed primarily for organisational approaches, provide a model for the OH management of individuals suffering the consequences of stress at work.
- 30 DILEMMA
Access to medical reports
 Healthcare consultant Peter Singleton believes that fitness-for-work reports written by occupational physicians are covered by the Access to Medical Reports Act 1988. An experienced occupational physician disagrees.
- 32 EXPERT WITNESS
Health and safety dismissals
 The Employment Rights Act 1996 protects employees from being dismissed at work for putting health and safety considerations first. Diana Kloss explains how the law works in practice and how it applies to OH professions.
- 34 RESEARCH DIGEST
 ... sick syndrome not linked to buildings ... occupational dermatitis ... sick leave in farmers ... anti-violence training in healthcare
- 36 BOOKSHELF
 ... FOM Guidance on ethics for occupational physicians
- 37 TOOLBOX & DIARY
- 39 BRIEFING
 ... your need to know guide to this issue