About The At Work Partnership

Dedicated to bringing high quality, good value conferences and specialist professional development courses to OH, H&S, and HR professionals, The At Work Partnership researches the subjects that really matter to professionals in your field, and sources speakers who are true subject experts. We ensure that each conference is of the highest quality, and provide you with useful documentation to which you can refer time and time again.

We also publish the journal Occupational Health [at Work] as well as a new online service, OH Law Online, and we produce two free OH email newsletters, one focusing on OH law, and the other on general OH news. Visit www.atworkpartnership.co.uk to get your copies and find out more.

Preparing for the GDPR

The European Union's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) comes into force in the UK on 25 May 2018. Most processing of personal data in the UK will be subject to the mandatory provisions of the GDPR and the UK government has supplemented this, where it is permitted to do so, by domestic legislation (the Data Protection Bill) which will also take effect on 25 May 2018. As well as regulating information processing in relation to individuals, it will also amend the functions of the Information Commissioner to bring them into line with requirements of the GDPR.

The GDPR builds on existing EU data protection law, making it even more far reaching than before and will harmonise data protection rules across all EU member states. Britain will remain compliant even after Brexit. The GDPR places tougher demands on the processing of personal data and in particular on organisations that process personal health data, and thus creates new challenges for occupational health services, which will need to be compliant from day one.

This one-day seminar will help OH professionals understand the new European and domestic law and what they will need to do to make their OH services compliant with it.

How will attending this seminar benefit you?

You will gain:

- An in-depth comprehension of the GDPR and how this affects data protection in OH
- A detailed understanding of how to implement the provisions of the GDPR in all types of OH practice. From the issues of consent to privacy notices, record keeping to encryption, we examine the practical issues that you need to consider to ensure compliance.

This training is designed for:

- Occupational health nurses • Occupational physicians
- Allied professionals working in OH

About our expert speakers

Dr John Ballard

John has been researching and writing on OH and disability issues for over 20 years. He edits The At Work Partnership publication, Occupational Health [at Work], and is an honorary fellow of the Faculty of Occupational Medicine and an honorary senior lecturer at the University of Birmingham's Institute of Occupational and Environmental Medicine. He is the joint editor with Diana Kloss of Discrimination Law and OH Practice (The At Work Partnership, 2012).

Nick Hanning

Nick is a consultant and personal injury and employment lawyer with Dutton Gregory LLP where he specialises in psychiatric injury claims especially those involving bullying and harassment or occupational stress. Nick acted for the claimant in the seminal case of Majrowski v Guy's and St Thomas's NHS Trust, and also in a separate case that resulted in the largest ever employment tribunal award of £4.5 million. Nick is a past president of the Chartered Institute of Legal Executives.

Prof Diana Kloss MBE

Diana is a barrister, former employment judge and honorary senior lecturer in OH Law at the University of Manchester. Her publications include Occupational Health Law (5th edition, Wiley Blackwell, 2010), and Discrimination Law and OH Practice for The At Work Partnership. She is an honorary fellow of the Faculty of Occupational Medicine, an ACAS arbitrator, and in 2009, was awarded an MBE. Diana is honorary president of the Council for Work and Health and is a visiting professor at London South Bank University.

Dr Steve Boorman CBE

Steve is director of employee health at Empactis. Previously, he was chief medical officer for Optima Health, chief medical adviser for Capita and medical director for Abermed, following a 20 year career with Royal Mail, where he managed an outsourced OH function. Steve is chair of the Council for Work and Health. In 2009 he led the NHS Health and Wellbeing Review – the Boorman Review and he received a CBE in 2013 for services to occupational health.
