OH report writing – Preparing management reports from OH referrals

Preparing high quality OH reports is one of the most important tasks that occupational health professionals undertake. This workshop has been put together by The At Work Partnership to help OH practitioners produce concise, well-written OH reports that:

- provide quality information for managers – and can be understood by employees
- and will be defensible if the information contained in them is ever required in legal proceedings.

This training is designed for:

- Occupational health nurses • Occupational physicians
- Allied professionals working in OH

How will attending this training benefit you?

- Learn how to write concise, robust OH reports that will stand up to scrutiny in a court or an employment tribunal
- Find out how to comply with the latest legislation, including the new General Data Protection Regulation and Data Protection Act
- Gain an understanding of the whole process of report writing – from the initial referral to the final report – in order to maximise the usefulness of the report to management
- Enhance your report writing style – do's and don'ts of report writing in practice
- Improve your ability to identify the type and quantity of information required to produce reports of the highest standards
- Understand how to audit and improve your clinical record keeping and reports
- Receive detailed, clear documentation to help you when you are writing your OH reports

Course outline

This workshop covers the preparation of occupational health reports for management, following the OH referral. It will cover practice issues such as sickness absence, likely return to work, disability and case management. The course follows the principles on confidentiality and medical reports established in guidance published by the General Medical Council, the Faculty of Occupational Medicine and the Office for the Information Commissioner, and will help inform evidence for SEQOHS accreditation/re-accreditation. The At Work Partnership takes the view that these guidance principles apply to all health professionals working in an OH setting.

The training follows six key stepping stones to excellence in OH report writing:

Attend this training workshop to ensure that your OH reports provide management with the information that they require, and meet all your legal obligations.

NB The course is not intended to cover reports carried out for statutory health surveillance.

About our expert tutors

Sandra Winters

Sandra Winters was previously the head of health and wellbeing for NHS England and is currently the managing director of Organisational Wellbeing Limited. She is a nurse consultant in occupational health, and specialises in strategic development of workplace health and wellbeing. Her previous experience encompasses NHS acute healthcare settings, local authority, education – as senior lecturer within OH at Sheffield University – and manufacturing. Sandra has led and achieved SEQOHS accreditation for two NHS Trusts.

Dr Nerys Williams

Nerys is an independent occupational physician, a non-executive director of a large mental health trust, and a GMC examiner. Nerys is the former principal occupational physician and deputy director (wellbeing) for the Department for Work and Pensions, and a former head of the Employment Medical Advisory Service at the HSE. Nerys has previously held roles as chief medical officer for PIP at Capita and clinical audit advisor for PwC.

Prof Diana Kloss

Diana is a barrister, former employment judge and honorary senior lecturer in OH Law at the University of Manchester. Her publications include Occupational Health Law (5th edition, Wiley Blackwell, 2010), and Discrimination Law and OH Practice for The At Work Partnership. She is an honorary fellow of the Faculty of Occupational Medicine, an ACAS arbitrator, and in 2009, was awarded an MBE. Diana is honorary president of the Council for Work and Health.
